Charter commission may be formed in Pahokee

By JEFF BROWN
PAHOKEE - The Pahokee City Council Tuesday night, October 25, voted 4-1 to establish a charter commission charged with researching and developing a change in the city charter, even though a narrow majority of voters in the city rejected a proposal to change the charter in a straw poll earlier that day.

The results of the straw poll, which gave citizens the opportunity to accept or reject a proposal to change to a city manager form of government instead of the current strong mayor-city council form, indicated that a narrow majority of Pahokee residents still cling to the traditional form of government.

Of the 509 ballots cast in the non-binding referendum, 278 voted against changing the charter while 241 voted in favor of the change.

One Pahokee resident, Randall J. Mills, told the council that may have been due to the wording of the ballot. He said it may have led many voters to believe they would lose their right to vote for the mayor, city clerk and city marshal under a city manager form of government.

While the straw ballot indicated that would be the case, the city council wasn't bound

Fees may alter plans

BELLE GLADE - The cold, hard facts of cold, hard cash may be catching up with the Black Gold Jubilee Steering Committee's plans to hire a big-name entertainer for the 1984 festival.

The committee learned from member Charida Sizemore Friday, October 21, that well-known entertainers aren't hired for peanuts and the committee may not be able to raise enough money to pay for a performer.

The committee members had been discussing the possibility of attracting outsiders to the Glades festival by hiring a well-known performer. Sizemore had been trying to determine what performers and entertainers were available for the April weekend event, but her report last Friday wasn't too optimistic.

She said the biggest problem she had was not knowing how much the committee was willing to spend for an entertainer.

The lowest priced entertainer was about $15,000, with about half of that to be paid 30 days prior to the show and the other half delivered just before the show started.

She also said the limited capacity of Dolly Hand Cultural Center is a problem. The 500 seats would dictate a high ticket price in order to raise enough revenue to pay for the performance.

"If we aren't going to do it outside, with a big name entertainer, there ain't no way we are gonna make it with 500 seats," agreed committee member Mike Underwood.

Sizemore suggested the committee could use an entertainer as free entertainment at the marina during the festival and charge elsewhere to raise enough funds to hire the performer. The committee had discussed charging an admission fee to the festival next.

"I've heard a lot of negative comments on charging admission to a community oriented event," said committee member Israel Baez, Jr.

Sizemore said she knew of two "up-and-coming" groups that the committee could probably get for less than $10,000 each.

The "Cotton Patch Gospel Show" would cost the committee $6,500.

She said the group puts on a musical show and they could probably perform a brief "teaser" at the marina to attract people to a show at the auditorium that evening, but they wouldn't want to perform outside.

She added she didn't know if a medium named entertainer would attract coast residents since so many big names appear on the coast.

"I really believe we could get them at this point," said Sizemore.

She also played a tape from a group called "Horse Sense" that the committee could hire for $1,500. The group would do two shows in a "laid back" fashion that would probably fit into the Black Gold Jubilee character. She said the group also wants to come to the festival.

"I don't think that we're gonna draw hordes of people to see 'Horse Sense,'" said Sizemore.

"I don't think we're gonna pull 'em farther than South Bay," said Underwood.

"I think we have to be realistic," said committee member Donald Fiehs. "We just don't have a large enough facility to have a big-name entertainer."

Glades native rides bike from Colorado to Florida

By JEFF BROWN

Running and bicycling have always been a big part of John Price's life, so, when the Pahokee-born resident of Steamboat Springs, Colorado decided he wanted to do something that would tax him mentally and physically, he decided to take two months and bicycle back to Florida.

He left Denver August 31 and arrived in Belle Glade about a month later on the same Fuji bicycle he bought while in college 11 years ago.

The trip of over 3,000 miles was the first bicycle expedition for the 30-year old man, but he said it won't be his last. He will be starting a little slower next time, though, he said.

"The next time I go on a trip, and I will go on more of them because they're lots of fun. I'll start slower and go maybe only 70 or 80 miles a day the first few days."

He said he made 140 miles in the first day of his trip and kept traveling at about that pace for the first five days of the expedition.

The result, he said, was knee problems. He pushed himself too hard too early and his knees got sore as a result.

Those problems worked themselves out by the time he reached Fort Worth, Texas, though and he started to travel more rapidly and enjoy the trip.

Why bicycle all the way to south Florida from northwest Colorado?

"Well, I turned 30 this year and I thought it might be the time to have some fun," said Price, who was visiting his grandmother, Verda Mathewson in Belle Glade. "The funny thing about the trip, when I called and told the family I was coming, they offered to send me bus money. It was like they thought I couldn't afford it and that was why I was bicycling."

He said he spent close to $800 acquiring gear and making adjustments to the bicycle for the journey.

A bus ticket would have been cheaper, but not as much fun, apparently.

He said he particularly enjoyed meeting the different people on the route and seeing the various parts of the country he rode through.

"There was this one old man, up in the (Florida) panhandle, asked me where I was going. I told him Fort Myers and he said 'That ain't that far. Where'd you start.' When I said Denver, he said 'Denver? You sure oughta know how to ride that bike by now,'" said Price.

"I was surprised how beautiful south Alabama was. They have some really nice beaches. And I guess my favorite town along the whole way was probably Grayton Beach (Florida). I remember it was just about 30 houses and I thought it looked like everybody knew everyone else that lived there. It was nice and quiet and no signs of any tourists anywhere."

His route, which he planned to allow him to visit relatives and friends on the way, took him from the mountains of Colorado to the Gulf coast of Florida and the Everglades farm land.

Along the way, he passed through "some real nice valleys and some barren ones also. I rode through plateaus with farmland and through the deserts."

In the west, he was able to see the effects of irrigation on arid land.

He said he'd be traveling through a long stretch of barren land. Just 20 miles down the road, he'd find himself in the middle of highly cultivated farmland.

BICYCLIST JOHN PRICE rode his two-wheeler from Steamboat Springs, Colorado to Florida on a two-month vacation. He said he took the trip because he turned 30 this year and decided to do something fun. The van he's standing in front of will be his ride home.

Harbor project still under study

PAHOKEE — City of investors, still looking inficials and private in- to the possibility of developing the resort, have received Pahokee Harbor into a some encouragement in their efforts to cut through state and regulatory agency restrictions from the Florida Department of Natural Resources.

The letter was received last month but the city council just this week charged Mayor Duncan Padgett with investigating the option it outlines.

The option, which basically involves turning the land back to the state and releasing it under a different program, could require the renegotiation of the city's agreement with the Pahokee Marina Development Corporation,
according to Councilman Walter Rashley.

He said Donald Keirn, an official with the Department of Natural Resources, told him a telephone conversation that the state would probably want to renegotiate the entire agreement if it gives its assent to the project.

Councilman William McKinstry said he was opposed to the agreement because he felt the city was coming out on the "short end of the stick," and he would want the agreement
changed to give the city more money.

J. Ray Hatton II, a spokesman for PMDC, said the investors had realized that various agencies would want their "piece of the action" and that was the reason they were so adamant in the share

they were willing to pass on to the city.
Rashley said Keirn told him the telephone conversation that the state would be willing to work with the city on the project and that is already doing so on a similar project in Sarasota.

Rashley suggested a conference call with Keirn, city and PMDC officials, but the council decided to ask Padgett to call Keirn and get the information it needed prior to the council's next meeting Tuesday,
November 8.

Councilman Jon Mock said he would also call Keirn.

In other business,
the council.
• Learned that there were two vacancies to fill on the city's Planning and Zoning Board.
James Elrod moved from the city and Chairman Lynn Brinson resigned effective October 19.

Padgett said he would bring some recommendations to the council to fill the vacancies.

• Voted to purchase a microwave for the kitchen in city hall.

Sugar mills start Nov. 1

The first permitted burning of the 1983-1984 sugar harvest is scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 30, Robert Coker, community relations director for United States Sugar Corp., said Tuesday.

Cane cutters will go to work Monday and are expected to harvest enough cane to fill 100 rail cars.

Both the Clewiston and Bryant Sugar Houses are expected to be in operation by Monday, Nov. 1, he said.

The harvest will continue through the latter part of March.

Growing conditions have been excellent, tonnage and sugar levels are as anticipated, and — Mother Nature willing — the Glades area should enjoy another good harvest, he said.

USSC is beginning its 1983 harvest a week later than in 1982.
Jeanne Olson of the Florida Sugar Cane League said Monday a "rollout" of harvesting equipment has been scheduled for Monday, Oct. 31, at the Belle Glade Sugar Co-op. A forecast of the 1983-1984 harvest will be announced at that time, she said.

All mills in the area will be in operation by
Nov. 1, she said.

Time to 'fall back'

Remember to re-set your clock this weekend.

Florida goes from Daylight Savings Time to Eastern Standard Time 2 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 30.

The rule of thumb is fall back, spring ahead. So when you go to bed Saturday night, set your clock back one hour.

County plans work

The streets and sewers in Radville
south of Belle Glade, will probably be improved in the near future due to action taken by the Palm Beach County Commission.

The commissioners, meeting in a regular session Tuesday, October 18, approved an expenditure of $393,649 to improve the streets and sewers in the development.

Murder charge levied for death

A Belle Glade resident is charged with second degree murder in the shooting death of another Belle Glade man early Saturday morning, October 25.

According to local law enforcement officers, Wilbur E. Campbell, 21, of 90 Bethune Street in Belle Glade, allegedly shot Charles W. Cain, 30, of 940
West Avenue A, number four, as a result of a dispute.

Cain died from the gunshot wounds.

Apparently, Cain and Campbell had argued late Friday evening in Belle Glade. The dispute resulted in Campbell shooting Cain in the side, according to a Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department report.

Cain went to Glades General Hospital where he was treated and released.

Cain allegedly took a shotgun and went seeking Campbell, who he found in South Bay.

When he confronted Campbell, Campbell
apparently produced a pistol and started shooting at Cain. Cain was hit in the upper left abdomen.

South Bay Police were called to the scene at 196 Northwest 10th Avenue at about 1:40 a.m., and found Cain in the middle of the street, wounded.

He was transported to Glades General Hospital again where he died.

The investigation was turned over to the Palm Beach County
Sheriff's Department
Saturday.

Campbell was charged with second degree murder.

Bare Beach death under study

Glades sub-station of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department
are investigating the death of a 26-year-old Bare Beach resident.

According to reports,
Henry Wren Shupe, 26,
of Lakeview Trailer Park on U.S. 27 was found dead at 6:20 a.m.
October 22.

Halloween safety tips offered by police in schools

Trick-or-treating has been scheduled for Monday, October 31 between 5 and 7 p.m. in the Glades area, according to Sergeant Dan Crist of the Belle Glade Police Department.

Crist has been making the annual rounds of the Belle Glade elementary schools to tell students what the types of safety measures should be taken while trick-or-treating.

"This is the third year of the safety program which was instituted after excessive vandalism on Halloween night four years ago. We've had pretty good results," said Crist of the program's success.

The program is geared toward grade school age children because police are discouraging older children from trick-or-treating. "Anyone old enough to go out by themselves is too old to go trick-and-treating," said Crist.

All trick-or-treaters should be accompanied by an adult and should only trick-or-treat in their neighborhood, according to Crist. Extra police will be on duty that evening also, he added.

Staying in the types of safety neighborhood insures the children and the residents they call on know one another.

He also said children should only go to homes with lighted porch lights.

"Those welcoming trick-and-treaters should turn on their porch lights by 5 p.m.," said Crist.

Crist also said that, although the 5 to 7 p.m. schedule for trick-or-treating was decided upon in an effort to get the children off the streets before dark, there are certain safety measures parents and their children should take: • All trick-or-treaters should carry a light source of some type, such as a flashlight. The costume should also be simple, fire-resistant and of light material so they are easily seen at night.

Regular street shoes should be worn instead of prop "clown" or "pirate" shoes.

Also, any props such as guns or swords should be made of styrofoam or cardboard and jack-o-lanterns should contain a flashlight, not a candle.

Clothing can be made fire resistant by saturating it in a mixture of nine ounces of boric acid, four ounces of borax and a quart of hot water, then allowing the clothing to dry.

The fire-resistance will wash out in the laundry.

• Faces can be painted with make up instead of using masks. Applying a thin layer of cold cream under the make up will make it easier to remove the make up afterwards.

• Children should never eat any treats until they have taken them home and had them examined by their parents.

All unwrapped treats should be thrown away, Crist said that, although fruits and homemade confections may be more nutritious than the store-bought, commercially prepared treats, the risk of obtaining tampered treats of that nature is greater.

He said those giving treats should only pass packaged, commercially prepared treats to trick-or-treaters.

Wrappers of commercial treats should be checked for tampering, he added.

If any tampered treats are found, they shouldn't be consumed and the police should be notified.

• An adult or teen should accompany each group which should be limited to no more than four or five trick-or-treaters.

Parents who stay at home while their children go with another adult should know the exact route their children will take, according to Crist.

Trick-or-treaters should walk and not run and they should never enter a stranger's house. Parents shouldn't encourage children to enter a stranger's home by inviting trick-or-treaters, Crist said.

• Trick-or-treat bags should have handles to keep the children's arms free.

Parents and residents are encouraged to keep pets inside the house, garage or a shed and to avoid leaving their homes unattended on Halloween night.

"What we want to stress very, very heavily is for children to trick-and-treat in their own neighborhoods," said Crist. "They know the people and the people know them."

He said the chances of children receiving tampered treats in their own neighborhoods is "very slim."

Council's brazen move a proper one

Well the results are in and once again the voters of Pahokee have done the expected and passed up efficiency for tradition. They defeated the city manager concept 278-241 in favor of the current strong mayor-city council form of local government.

But, unlike the past, the city council is apparently not willing to let the city manager form of government lie comatose until someone pulls it moribund remains out of a closet and props it up for another "straw ballot" on the issue.

Apparently inspired by the narrowness of the margin (55 percent to 45 percent, a difference of 47 votes), the council voted 4-1 to establish a charter commission to research and develop a proposal to change the city charter and the form of government to a city manager form of government.

The proposal could be before the voters in a binding referendum by next spring.

The motion by Walter Rashley passed 4-1, with only William E. McKinstry opposing it.

We applaud the gutsy decision to seek the change despite the defeat of the city manager proposal in the straw poll.

"I will govern according to the common weal (welfare), but not according to the common will," England's King James I said in 1621.

That was too one-sided to be applicable all the time, but it fits in this case. We think the council's decision reflects that attitude in the most positive of ways.

Elected government officials often have to carry the burden of deciding what is right for the governed. Otherwise, all government could be run like the old town councils of New England where every citizen is permitted a vote in the city's business.

That eliminates any need for the council.

The council must look after the best interests of the city and balance them against the will of the people. Sometimes, one must take precedence over the other.

This is one of those cases. The will of the people, if that has been expressed in a straw poll that saw only 47 more people vote against the city manager than voted for it, does not have the best interest of the city at heart.

We think the council does and we are heartened to see it finally take a lead, albeit a controversial one, in looking after that interest.

The Ghouls of Halloween

Halloween will be celebrated Monday, October 31 in the Glades as the ghouls could be out in force.

Not the type that's composed of children dressed in costumes and carrying sacks to catch candy. The types that tamper with those treats or vandalize homes and property or drive recklessly in spite of the overwhelming presence of children.

Those are the modern day ghouls of Halloween and we urge every parent and child participating in Halloween festivities this year to take the necessary precautions against those ghouls.

Local law enforcement officers have visited every grade school in Belle Glade and South Bay to inform the students of Halloween safety measures. Those safety tips have been outlined in an article in this week's Herald-Observer and via other local media.

While the costumes and disguises are the fun parts of the holiday, those safety tips are the lifesaving parts.

We appreciate the efforts of local law enforcement agencies, businesses and institutions to make Halloween safer for everyone. Since the safety program started three years ago, it's been quite successful, according to Sergeant Dan Crist of the Belle Glade Police Department.

We hope that success continues and that those celebrating Halloween follow the safety tips.

Don't let the modern ghouls of Halloween catch up with you.

City should zap oven idea

The Pahokee city council Tuesday evening decided to purchase a microwave oven for the kitchen in city hall at the request of the city hall employees.

We tend to agree with Pahokee resident Julia Johnson who said she objected to the spending of tax dollars on a microwave when streets need repaired and other city needs have to be tended to.

The excuses put forth by city officials aren't good enough.

William E. McKinstry, an employee of Southern Bell, said his company has several microwave ovens. Some are bought by the city and some by employees, "so it cuts both ways."

Is this the same telephone company which no more gets done obtaining one rate increase than it's looking for another? But telephone company policies aren't the issue here. The city's policies are.

Before the city should start buying luxuries like microwave ovens, it should be taking care of the big problems Pahokee is facing, like housing and streets and sewage and water plant problems.

Councilman Ronnie Graydon, who moved the oven be bought, pointed out the funds would come from the administrative section of the budget, not streets and roads.

He didn't mention that funds can be transferred from one category to a more critical area of a budget.

We suggest the council place the microwave oven purchase on a backburner for a while and think about other possible uses for the funds.

Big names cost big bucks

The Black Gold Jubilee Steering Committee may have found that hiring top-notch entertainer with a big enough name to attract outsiders to the spring festival is too expensive.

If so, that's not a moment too early. The committee is, understandably, trying to top last year's feat (or fete) that was thousands came out to see the world's largest salad.

If a big-name entertainer won't be available to help the committee do the job, they'll have to find another gimmick.

Those things take time and planning in order to be effective. It's best to find out early what can and cannot be done and concentrate on the possible.

We wish the committee luck.

The spy who stayed out of the language lab

I'm sure many of you have wondered why I never became a spy. Those of you who haven't might want to take a moment now to do so and catch up with the rest of us later. We're not going far with this, I can assure you. Besides, we will wait for you — which is more than I can say for Joe Yelow.

I'll tell you about him later since he is the main reason I am not at this very moment sleuthing around Latin America. He's not the reason I'm not in Russia, though, or French Morocco or US intelligence.

Anyway, I had three good reasons for trying out for the position of Spy III (Entry Level). I owned a trench coat, had 20-20 vision with my sunglasses, and was an efficient lurker. I had a minor problem to overcome: not being able to grow a mustache. But I was working on that, keeping in mind you can do anything if you try hard enough.

My major drawback was a language barrier. To spy, you have to have a second language. After all, nobody gets very subversive in Seattle, you know. But any foreign language I tried to master lost something in the translation. I could say, and should, that it lost everything in my translations.

The first language I was taught was French. They had a go at it anyway and except for pronunciation and comprehension, I was pretty good. To this day I can recite (with gestures) "Maitre Corbeau sur un arbre perche..." the dramatic opening lines to "The Fox and the Cheese." (For bookings, contact my agent.) But French has a peculiarity. A Frenchman can throw away the last letter or up to as much as half a word and say nothing of it. I tended to throw away the good part and save the best for last. This confuses the French. Because they have never heard those word endings spoken, they assumed I was speaking some other language. A fair assumption, I might add.

Russian is a good language for a spy to know, too. But Russian endings also plagued me — they were too far away from the beginning of the word for me to remember what it was I was going to say. Also, if you've ever noticed a Russian is made up of the letters other languages throw away because they don't use them very often. The early Russians, noticing all the z's, j's, and v's lying around, decided to put them to work. By separating them with h's and adding some vowels (back to front and upside down, of course) they came up with a language of their own and one that has never since been duplicated except by computers with short circuits.

Inevitably, I turned to Spanish. (A) Nothing is left out; what you see you say, and (B) Spanish doesn't line up an alphabet just for something to say. I was getting along okay, or as we say in Spanish 101, "muy bien" when I ran into, and was knocked out by, Joe Yelow.

Joe Yelow hung around the language lab where he called himself, Jose Amarillo. Three hours a week I was supposed to report to the lab

Ailsa Dewing

"And What Not"

for conversational Spanish. In the dead of night, Senor Amarillo, would creep into the lab and prepare a tape recording for students to listen to individually. He would leave pauses (of about half a nanosecond) for us to answer his questions.

Dutifully picking up Joe Yelow's latest hit recording, I would find a listening booth and don my earphones which were only slightly less cumbersome than a football helmet and tune in on Jose.

"Buenas dias, me llamo Jose Amarillo." (Pause)

In the time it took me to translate, "Good day, me I call Joe Yelow," he was off and running and I'd missed my chance to return his greeting. Not to worry, there'd be another short pause for him to ask me how I was.

"Como estas?" (Pause)

Now if I'd wanted to say a brief, "Fine, thank you," I probably could have squeezed it in, but that was too easy. Even in Joe's world, which came across amazingly cheerful, I knew people must have headaches or throbbing corns. I wanted to let him know "I have a headache." But by the time I had put together something like, "I have the pain in the head," Jose was well into the news bulletins and ready for the weather report.

I could, of course, back Jose up and demand equal time to reply, but time flies when you speak Spanish. It's a very fast language.

After three weeks of never hearing a word Jose said beyond, "How are you?" I gave it up. I don't think he really wanted to know. And, anyway, by then I honestly did have a headache from trying to play Twenty Questions with Jose every day and losing 19-1. So one day I said to Jose, (in English) "Why don't you knock it off?" and left him chattering into the air as I slammed out the door, never to return.

I learned to read Spanish. I learned to speak it, although like someone rather dull-witted, I admit. I just never learned to listen to it. This is a serious drawback for a spy, who can't always ask the informer to write down the spy stuff he's giving out.

I might still have gone into Intelligence as a decoder. But a course in shorthand showed me I could write it but couldn't decipher it. It would have been the same thing with codes, you know. I could have written them but I wouldn't have known how to read them.

It's probably just as well I didn't go out for spying, anyway. Somewhere along the way I lost my trench coat.

It's a sad world

So much has happened this week that we scarcely have a chance to get over one bit of bad news before another happens.

With almost 200 Marines dying overnight in Beirut, news that a fellow in a pickup truck rams his way through the gate of an Augusta golf course to see the President quickly pales in significance.

The tragedy is that either we expose our young men to crazed terrorists in an effort to keep the peace or turn the region over to those ruthless enough to stamp out dissent of any kind.

And how about that invasion of Grenada? While there is little information is sketchy at press time, I like the idea of throwing the Marxist rascals out before they get a chance to get settled in. The U. N. can condemn us afterwards if they want. In this situation I almost see it as a compliment.

Raiders celebrate Homecoming

By ALMA HENRY

BELLE GLADE - The Glades Central Community High School Raiders culminated their annual homecoming festivities with a victory dance after crushing Pope John Paul 35-7 before a capacity crowd at Memorial Stadium Friday evening.

The school's student body marked the occasion with a week of activities beginning Monday, October 17 through Friday, October 21.

The homecoming theme was "Invest in Knowledge: It Pays Great Dividends."

The celebration kicked off Monday with the annual coronation of campus royalty in a packed gymnasium.

Christine Peete, the wife of professional golfer Calvin Peete, and Clarence Anthony, GCHS student council president in 1977, served as the hostess and host for the program.

Also appearing in the program were GCHS graduates Willie Lawrence, Eddie Coffie and Yvonne Cushman, Miss Glades Central in 1982.

Kimberly L. Abrams was crowned the new Miss Glades Central High School. Members of the royal court were Charmaine P. Amos, first runner-up to Miss GCHS; Lois Anderson, Miss Senior; Dymisha Jackson, Miss Junior Attendant; Joy Coleman, Miss Junior to Miss GCHS; and Marlene Lesl, attendant to Miss Junior.

Also honored were Sandra Williams, Miss Sophomore Attendant to Miss GCHS; Idell Clark, Miss Sophomore; Michelle Rhodes, attendant to Miss Sophomore; Tammy Harris, Miss Freshman to Miss GCHS; Dawn Ewan, Miss Freshman and Angela Thompson, attendant to Miss Freshman.

Miss Glades Central and her army of attendants were presented during the halftime activities at the football game Friday evening.

The coronation was coordinated by James Allen, student council sponsor, with the assistance of Betty L. Morris, coronation coordinator; Michelle Tyler, student coronation cordinator and Sharon V. Brown.

Homecoming activities continued throughout the week with the student body participating in mini-pep rallies, color day, future occupation day, dress-up day and school color day.

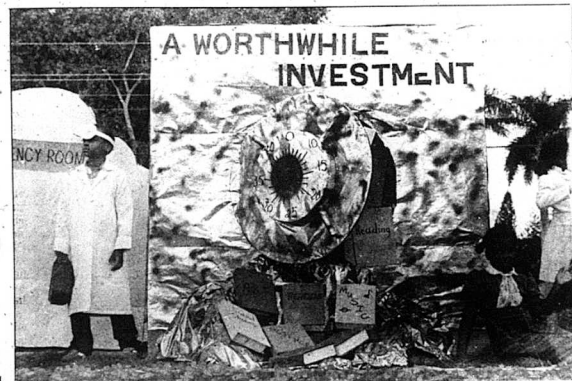

Students arriving at school Friday were greeted by a large Raider in the entrance of the school.

Prior to Friday's parade, one of the largest in the school's history, there was an hour long pep rally in the gym.

In the skit competition, the sophomores placed first, the juniors second, the seniors third and the freshmen fourth.

Pahokee Elementary School won the Community and Other Schools Division in the float competition. Rosenwald Elementary in South Bay and Lake Shore Elementary placed second and third respectively.

Float competition at the high school was won by the junior class. The seniors were second, the sophomores third and freshmen fourth.

A BANK VAULT full of books helped relay Knowledge: It Pays Great Dividends" on the Homecoming theme "Invest in this float."

Grant applications open November 1

TALLAHASSEE - Low-income Florida residents can begin applying for grants on November 1 from the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program, Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) officials said recently.

The program, authorized by Congress, is designed to help low-income families and individuals meet the costs of home energy. Assistance will be limited to a one-time only payment to eligible households. The program is not a crisis program and does not pay monthly utility bills.

HRS, which is administering the program, estimates that more than 150,000 low-income households throughout the state may apply for aid. In order to qualify for assistance, households will have to meet income standards based on family size and total case income for all household members. Income limits are $405 per person, $825 for four, month for an income of $1105 for six, plus individual, $545 for two $140 for each additional person.

The committee will be making a final decision in the future after determining how much money it can raise.

One new source of income that may make it possible for the committee to hire some type of entertainer will be the Black Gold Jubilee Dance, which the committee voted to take over for 1984.

Traditionally, other clubs had been sponsoring the dance and reaping the profits from it. Bass, who made the motion to take over the dance, said the dance won't give the committee enough money to hire a big-name performer.

Bicyclist

"That was all because they were irrigating there. Irrigation is amazing," he said.

He said one of the best experiences of the trip was catching his first sight of the Gulf of Mexico after about a month on the road.

"I was in this little town in Mississippi and I made a right turn and saw the gulf," he said. "It gave me a real rush. An adrenalin rush. I felt excited when I saw the gulf. After all that traveling through country with no water."

Price also said most of the people he met were kind and made him feel welcome.

"The bad were very few and far between," he said, adding that one of his favorite experiences on the expedition was arriving in Fort Myers where his mother owns a fish market.

Although she had been looking for his arrival for some time, he apparently caught her off guard and surprised her.

The trip gave Price a chance to evaluate the roads of several states and those states' attitudes toward bicyclists.

Florida, he points out, has the highest number of bicyclist deaths in the nation, even higher than California where more people live and use bicycles.

"The drivers are more erratic down here than anywhere else and so the roads are really bad. The drivers don't seem to want to let you on the road, even though a bicyclist is supposed to have all the rights and privileges thereof," said Price. "And if there was no shoulder, I'd follow the white line on the side of the road. Well, in Florida, I'd be riding and that white line may be missing. Part of the road would be missing."

He said he read after he arrived in Fort Myers that Florida led the nation in bicycle related deaths, but that didn't surprise him, after riding the length of the state.

"I noticed that it was worse in Florida," said Price. "I felt safest in Colorado. They have wide shoulders on most of their roads there and the people are more used to seeing bicyclists. There were no roads there I was uncomfortable with. And they kept them clean."

"Not like Texas. That was the worst state for litter. It's really dirty on their roads. Litter cost me a couple tires. I had all my flats in Texas. Oh, I had one in Florida."

"I'd be riding and be up on something before I knew it or could do anything about it."

He carried spare tubes and tires and a repair kit during the journey because of such emergencies. He said that if anyone is riding an expensive bicycle on a journey of any length, they should carry spare tubes and tires because most bicycle stores won't carry the equipment for the more expensive models.

"There were long stretches where there weren't any bicycle stores that carried what I needed," said Price.

The Fuji bicycle was altered prior to the expedition to make it more comfortable and better suited for the cross-country trek.

The saddle, usually hard, small seat, was replaced with a slightly better padded model.

Price added a third sprocket to give the 10-speed five more gears. The third sprocket was smaller than the other two to make it easier to climb hills.

Some light-weight racks and water carriers were added to allow him to carry his gear. He said that, when loaded, the bike weighed about 65 pounds.

He said he still started the trip with too much gear, stopping early in the journey and sending some of the excess back.

"It was stuff I just decided I wouldn't need," he said.

He advises those who want to take a similar expedition to "pack light. Go with the bare essentials. Pack only what you need then unpack it and take something else out. That's what I did."

The bicyclist should also carry spare parts and all the tools he or she will need to work on the bike if it breaks down.

"Just about anybody can do it," said Price of the trip. "They just have to believe they can do it and start slow."

He said his next trip won't be the ride home. He bought a van for that. Original plans were to fly home, but he said he's always wanted a van and one was available when he got here, so he bought it.

He'd like to take an expedition from Vancouver, Canada to San Diego, California some time and a similar expedition from Maine to Florida.

"You can go anywhere," he said. "If you don't have the time to go somewhere and come back, you can get these special boxes on airlines for only $10 more and fly back."

He said he may also enter some 100-mile bicycle races.

"I've seen how easy it is to do 140 miles in a day now," he said. "It's part of my life, running and bicycling."

City manager

to stick to that exact form of government and could alter the formation to permit the election of a mayor, marshal and clerk.

While the voters clung to tradition, the city council members broke with it in deciding to establish a charter commission.

The commission would be charged with researching various forms of government and developing a change in the charter to be put before the voters in a binding referendum, possibly as early as next spring.

Only Councilman William E. McKinstry voted against the decision to establish the charter commission.

Attorney Michael Stauder has been charged with determining how the commission should be appointed. A similar commission in the past was apparently elected by the voters and the council wanted to know if this one had to be elected.

"I think we should decide whether we want to proceed with this or drop it," said Councilman Walter Rashley in making the motion to establish the commission. "Personally, I'd like to proceed."

"Well, if 278 people in the straw vote said they were against it, I'm against proceeding with it," said McKinstry.

Rashley said the city should still have a proposal and binding referendum drawn up and put on the may 1984 ballot when three of the five city council seats, the mayor's seat, the city clerk's and city marshal's position are up for election.

"I'd still like to see us go ahead and do this," said Rashley. "We'll just go ahead and have another election next year anyway."

McKinstry suggested the proposal should be decided before may because if it passes, a May referendum on the question would prevent its going into effect for two years.

Those elected at the May ballot would have to serve out their terms before a charter change could go into effect, said McKinstry. Those terms run for two years.

Stauder said he would research that point.

Mayor Duncan Padgett, who worked against the proposed change, said he was against the charter commission, saying under home rule, the city could just change the charter and hire a manager without a special commission.

"You wanna appoint a charter committee and the next thing you know, they run wild and want to make all sorts of changes," said Padgett. "If we wanna do this, we should just change the charter and hire a city manager."

"I agree with Duncan that it's a waste of money," said Padgett.

"That isn't all the money we wasted," said Rashley.

Reverend Robert Carlson's "A Pinch of Salt"

We are all grieving over the 191 Marines (possibly more since the writing of this column) killed by one lethal driver in Beirut. Most of us are so angry we could probably retaliate without even feeling guilty for our reaction. It's the same anger we experienced not many weeks ago when the Soviets killed in cold blood the 269 aboard a Korean airliner.

But what hypocrites we are! We allow more than 500 people to be killed by drunk drivers on American highways every week. You and I can't stop terrorists from killing our Marines in Beirut, nor can we persuade the Soviets to repent of mass murder, but we could certainly do more to keep drunk drivers off the highways.

The reason I think we can do something about drunk drivers is that these potential murderers are our friends, neighbors, co-workers and family members. We ought to use peer pressure, fear of thelaw, guilt or whatever power is at our disposal to stop this senseless carnage.

Be angry with the Soviets and the terrorists in Lebanon if you must, but for the sake of your own family get angry enough to do something about the "Happy Hour" murderers in our community.

"Anyone, then, who knows the good he ought to do and doesn't do it, sins," James 4:17

Rupert Mock, Jr. named BG citizen of the year

By JILL JONES

W. Rupert "Bubba" Mock, Jr. was honored by the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce as its 1983 Citizen of the Year Thursday, Oct. 29, at the Elks Lodge.

Out-going Chamber Pres. James M. Herring, Jr. cited Mock, 44, for the national publicity reaped by Belle Glade for building the world's largest salad during the Black Gold Jubilee.

Mock chaired the salad committee. Herring also cited Mock's church and civic work with groups such as the Rotary Club, the Canal Hazards Committee, the Elks Lodge, the Arthritis Foundation and the Chamber of Commerce.

"It's the finest honor I have ever had," Mock said afterwards. "It was quite a surprise."

Mock, a resident of 805 N.E. 3rd Street, Belle Glade, who serves as vice president and director of Bank of Pahokee, said, "I'm sort of at a loss for words when I'm talking about myself."

Herring said Mock earned his award for his "willingness and unselfishness to serve his community."

Mock said he has enjoyed being involved in the activities which brought him the citizen of the year award.

Mock was born and raised in the Glades, graduated from Pahokee High School and Florida State University.

Mock attributes his attitude toward community involvement to his father, Rupert Mock, Sr., who several years ago became the first non-Belle Glade resident to win the Chamber's Agri-Industrial Award.

Mock and his wife, the former Paula Parsons, are parents of three daughters, Meena, 16, Lisa, 13, and Erica, 8.

Other awards presented Thursday included the Agri-Industrial Award - Dr. Victor L. Guzman, the Police Officer of the Year Award - Detective

Albert Dowdell III and Detective Michael Eugene Johnson, and the Firefighter of the Year - Jesse M. Womack.

Herring cited Dr. Guzman for agricultural research in the United States and abroad.

"He had a role in initiating, developing, and perfecting many of the current agricultural practices in the Everglades Agricultural area, especially in vegetable crop production," Herring said. "His scope of activities and interests is very broad: breeding of vegetables, crop cultural methods, soil fertility and nutrition, integrated crop management, and weed science."

Dr. Guzman, a Cornell-educated native of Peru who has lived in the Glades 30 years, is also a prolific author.

Dowdell, 29, and Johnson, 26, were recognized for their work with the newly organized Street Crime Suppression Unit of the Belle Glade Police Department.

Targeting on organized crime, drug trafficking and vice related activities, the two officers have been responsible for 135 arrests and the seizure and confiscation of $108,000 in vehicles, illegal currency, narcotics, and recovered stolen property.

Womack, a member of the Belle Glade Fire Department since 1973, was commended for his progressiveness and efforts to improve his professional education.

Womack was promoted to lieutenant in 1977, to captain-fire inspector in 1980, and has served as acting chief on several occasions.

Abbie Zumpf, last year's citizen of the year, told the Chamber gathering that "the awards are giving tonight are great."

The awards change your life and mean a lot because "you receive it from the people who know you best."

She called Belle Glade "one of the greatest towns in Florida and maybe anywhere."

Belle Glade Chamber installs new officers

One of the highlights of the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet and Awards Night Thursday, Oct. 20, was the installation of new officers and directors.

Out-going Chamber Pres. James M. Herring, Jr., quoted John F. Kennedy's famous "Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country" in stressing the need for local residents to get involved in their community and in their Chamber of Commerce.

"It appears many people have forgotten what made this country great," Herring said. County Commissioner Bill Bailey then installed officers and directors for 1983-1984: Pres. Israel Baez, First Vice Pres. Robert Raessler, Second Vice Pres. John Pitts, Treasurer Janel Meredith, and Executive Secretary Jewell Crane.

New directors installed included Craig Pate, Michael Grindstaff, Karen Johnson, and Judy Schiele.

Holdover directors included Janel Meredith, Steve Weeks, Mike Cunningham, Israel Baez, Douglas Lockhart, John Pitts, Robert Raessler, and James Herring.

Herring presented certificates of appreciation to outgoing directors John Baker, David Goodlett, Charles Echols, and Doris Priest.

Herring also presented a silver tray to Mrs. Crane for her 13 years service to the Chamber.

"Pleased give us your support not once but every week," said in-coming Pres. Baez.

Among the guests recognized Thursday were Lewell Hughes, Clewiston City Commissioner; Belle Glade Mayor and Mrs. Tom Altman; City Manager Tom Strang; Lou and June Boglioli; Belle Glade Commissioner George Goforth; Belle Glade Commissioner and Mrs. Claude Tindall; Belle Glade Commissioner and Mrs. Daniel Byrthwood; Inspector of Police Mike Miller; and Fire Chief Pete Webb.

Guest speaker Thursday was humorist Newt Hielscher of Shreveport, La.

Others taking part in the program were toastmaster Frank Teets and Dr. David T. Ewins with the invocation.

NEW OFFICERS and directors are installed day, Oct. 20, at the Elks Lodge in Belle Glade by County Commissioner Bill Bailey Thurs.

Glades Day record to 5-1 with 35-3 Carroll win

By MIKE UNDERWOOD

BELLE GLADE - The Gators defeated class 2A John Carroll last Friday despite giving up 195 yards, three touchdowns and two interceptions to penalties.

The victory gives the Gators a 5-1 record going into tomorrow night's game with district rival Benjamin.

"That cost us," said Coach Byron Walker, Jr. "We just had too many penalties. The kids work too hard all week to have this happen to them."

The Gators marched downfield with their first possession and took the early lead, 7-0.

That would be all the the Gators needed to seal their fifth victory of the season.

The defense held John Carroll to 15 yards on the ground and 112 yards passing. The Gator defense also intercepted four John Carroll passes.

Meanwhile, the Gator offense was busy gaining 309 yards on the ground and 76 in the air.

Philip Echols rushed for 188 yards on 19 carries to lead the team.

It was the Gators third victory in four class 2A games so far in 1983. Glades Day has one more 2A school scheduled: Melbourne Central the last week of the season.

Tomorrow afternoon, the Gators will be meeting district rival Benjamin at Benjamin. The winner of that game usually wins the district title.

"It's always an emotional game and the boys are always up to play them," said Walker. "Benjamin likes to use ball control. They throw the ball and try to hit us with the big play."

The school will be sending the team off with a pep rally and bonfire behind the school tonight at 7. The team will leave at 1 p.m. Friday.

"This is a big game and we need to keep the momentum lasting into this game," said Walker.

He's looking for a large turnout of Gator fans at the Benjamin game.

"It feels real good inside to me and the rest of the coaching staff to look around at an away game and see more Gator fans than the home team has. It always helps," commented Walker.

BALL TUCKED UNDER ARM, Gator Philip Echols (34) gains ground against the Rams.

GATOR MIKE SCHLECHTOR (12) moves the ball against John Carroll last Friday.

Turner says Pahokee needs a victory this week

PAHOKEE - With their season and hopes of post season already on the rocks, the Blue Devils are in need of a victory against Immokalee this Friday, according to Coach Amos Turner.

The Blue Devils, 1-5, were eliminated from post season play when they lost to Clewiston two weeks ago.

"The feeling at the school is down. I'm down, the players are down," said Turner. "We need a victory to maybe get things up again."

Turner, who's in his first year as coach with the Devils, said he isn't familiar with the Immokalee team and doesn't know what to expect from it.

A victory against Immokalee would help keep the Pahokee squad out of last place in the district and Turner said he's viewing that as incentive enough to win the contest.

"We don't wanna finish dead last in the conference," said Turner. "We're shooting for second place."

He said the team's had some problems this year, including the loss of some players for disciplinary reasons.

He added that this week the team has been working on all facets of the game, including offense and defense.

"We'll try to minimize our weaknesses," said Turner. "We have to work on motivating each of the players."

If the Blue Devils finish with four victories to end the season, it could mean a lot of the 1984 season, according to Turner.

It would also mean the Devils snatched a .500 record out of what is now a 1-5 season.

Raiders win homecoming game

By ALMA HENRY
BELLE GLADE — The Raiders hadn't won a homecoming game since 1980 until this year and "Pac Man" shares a large part of the responsibility for breaking that jinx.
 Willie Snead, known as "Pac Man" by his Glades Central peers, scored two touchdowns last Friday to push the Raiders to a 35-7 victory over Pope John Paul.
 The victory boosts Glades Central to 6-1 overall and dropped Pope John Paul to 2-5.
 Games remaining on the Raider schedule are Boca Raton, Lake Worth and a district 13A game against Cardinal Newman. That game will decide who represents the district in the playoffs.
 Snead scored his first touchdown when he returned the opening kickoff 62 yards. Eagle kicker Sean Thomas tried to catch the Raiders off guard with an onside kick, but the Raiders weren't fooled.
 Snead was waiting for the ball at the Raider 38 and raced in for the touchdown.
 Tim Sims kicked the extra point and the Raiders led the game 7-0.
 Turnovers and missed executions on offense shut the door early for Pope John Paul.
 After the Raiders' defense stopped the Eagles' offense cold, quarterback Kenneth Hammond went to work with an aerial performance.

 On first and 10 from Pope John Paul's 43 following Rob Castro's 12 yard punt, Hammond caught the secondary napping and hit wide receiver John Ford with a 43-yard touchdown pass.
 Sims kicked the extra point and the Raiders were out front 14-0 and on their way to their first Homecoming victory in three years.
 The Raiders scored their third touchdown when Hammond hit Snead on a 10-yarder early in the second quarter.
 Sims ran three yards for the two-point conversion and the Raiders were up 22-0.
 Eric Smith scored the Raiders' fourth TD of the game late in the second quarter. He returned a punt for 43 yards, but Sims' extra-point failed and Raiders went into the half with a 28-0 lead.
 Hammond was replaced in the third quarter by third-string quarterback Lionel Carmel.
 Pope John Paul got on the score board with 3:38 left in the third period when Lip Antekier scored on a 10-yard run. Antekier was carried off the field later after suffering a pinched nerve in his neck.
 Winton Monroe ran 25 yards in the fourth quarter to hit pay dirt for the final score of the contest. Sim's point after put the Raiders up 35-7.

 Hammond said he was surprised that the Raider receivers were open and he was able to get the ball to them. He said the first touchdown pass was designed to beat the man to the outside.
 "I put it up there and he went up and got it," said Hammond.
 Coach Dan Brown added that Hammond's been playing "pretty decent football" in recent weeks.
 "He's going to have to stay consistent and just do better than just pretty good the remainder of the season," said Brown.
 The Raiders gained a total of 103 yards on the ground and nine first downs while Pope John Paul gained only six first downs.
 The Raiders will meet Boca Raton High School Friday at 8 p.m. at Boca Raton.
 The Bobcats, led by Coach Rod Montgomery, are 3-3 overall and 1-2 in district 12 4A.
 The tickets for the game are on sale in the Glades Central Community High School book-keeper's office.
 The football field is located one block east of 195 on Glades Road.

RAIDER ALONZO ALLEN waits on the sidelines until called for duty.

A MEMBER of the Raider Maroon Machine Marching Band sweats it out while blowing his horn in halftime ceremonies last Friday.

PAHOKEE FORD-MERCURY, INC.
MIKE HORSLEY - OWNER

In this day and age when every car maker has such a wide selection of models to choose from, it's difficult to decide where to buy a new car. All dealerships advertise that their cars are the best, but who is to say which car really is. Obviously, all cars on the market today have their good points. We, therefore, conclude that the real difference is the dealership.

The ideal dealer offers a fair price on your new car, as well as an honest dollar for your trade-in. However, the most important factor is the SERVICE that you receive on your new car after the sale.

The writers of this 1983 Community Profile would like to recommend a dealer that considers the most important part of selling a car to be the quality service offered after the sale. We are talking about PAHOKEE FORD-MERCURY, INC., located at 154 E. Main St. in Pahokee, phone 996-7126, dealers for the famous Ford and Mercury automobiles.

See them today for a new or quality used car, and you'll see why we say "CUSTOMER CONSIDERATION" is their byword.

Crusaders drop 7th game

By ANA HERNANDEZ
BELLE GLADE - It hasn't been the best of seasons for the Christian Day Schoo Crusaders. They came off of 1982 after marking their best season ever at 5-4 only to fail in seven straight contests in 1983.
 Now, with only two more games to play, the Crusaders are looking to start another streak, a winning one this time.
 They travel to St. John Neumann after an off week this weekend and Athletic Director David Dailey said he and the rest of the coaching staff are trying to prepare the team for the final two weeks of the dismal season.
 Last week, the Crusaders traveled to Moore Haven where the Terriers became the latest in the line of victorious opponents, defeating the Crusaders 24-0.
 The Terriers threw for 70 yards and picked up 219 on the ground with 43 carries.
 The Crusaders managed 163 on the ground on 44 carries.
 Several Crusader drives were stopped. CDS took the opening kickoff and marched to the Terrier 25 where the drive was stopped.

 With 5:13 left in the first quarter, the Terriers scored on a 21 yard touchdown pass.
 They'd score again with 2:36 left when a Terrier carried the ball over from the 16 yard line. Moore Haven put 12 more points on the board in the second and fourth quarters, but each point after attempt failed.
 They wouldn't need those PATs, though, since, the Terrier defense was busy shutting out the Crusader offense.
 Three Crusader drives were stalled inside the Moore Haven 25 yard line.
 James Barnwell and JoJo Ramos led the team defensively.
 Barnwell had one tackle and 15 assists and Ramos made two tackles and 15 assists.
 Warren McMillan led the Crusader rushing attack with 44 yards on five carries. David Chambliss, the quarterback, completed five of 15 passing attempts for 58 yards.

ROBERT ECHOLS, a 5-9, 150-pound wide receiver from Glades Day School, now playing football for Maryville (Tenn.) College. He is the son of Renzo Echols of Belle Glade and Margie Echols of West Palm Beach.

PBJC-Glades Sports Day slated

Palm Beach Junior College-Glades' first Golden Anniversary event will be Thursday, Nov. 3, when 200 high school students will join college students for a Sports Day.
 The principals of each of the seven high schools in the Glades area have been invited to send 30 student athletes to the college for competition from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.
